A BIT OF HISTORY - SINCE 1889

In Campania, Italy, 1889, Raffaele Esposito created pizza, in his restaurant Pizzeria di Pietro. This new invention was especially made for the arriving Italian king and queen, King Umberto I and Queen Margherita.

He wanted to make a good first impression with his pizza. The Queen's favorite was a pizza evoking the colors of the Italian flag:

1. green (basil leaves),
2. white (mozzarella)
3. red (tomatoes).

When Esposito met the queen, the "Margherita" was born in her honour.

Almost 100 years later, Luigi Esposito, the owner of Via Napoli Pizzeria, followed his grandparents around the streets of Naples selling pagnottiello, and freshly made pizza covered by a blanket in a pram on the side of the streets. That pizza, that authentic and perfectly balanced recipe requires years of experience that goes from father to son in a tradition that few families have in Naples.

Chef Esposito, part of one of these families, brought his own secret recipe all the way to Australia, following the dream to share his heritage with as many people as he could.
